My experience with Pigeon Vitality products is the best. I have known the whole product range for the last 7 years. What distinguishes the PV products from the rest is their quality and consistency – the same effect every time we use them, all through these years.

Reporting just for the last years, we have won middle distance several times, as well as major championships composed of short-, middle- and long-distance races. We have had several Ace Pigeons at all distances over these years, and top results in international derbies and races too.

The PV products keep the pigeons in excellent condition to compete year after year with top results. Since I started using PV products, I have seen that the health of the pigeons is always on top – consistency, which is the most important thing in this sport.

As I usually say to pigeon fanciers when I recommend PV products: "Same products, same effect, same results."
